

Spiritual Realities and the Ends of Humanity: Engaging Indian Philosophy with Contemporary Philosophy of Religion

A GLOBAL PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION CONFERENCE

11-13 January 2027, Mumbai

Call for Papers:

The Global Philosophy of Religion Project 2, University of Birmingham (with funding from the John Templeton Foundation – Grant Number 62817), in collaboration with the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, IIT Bombay, is pleased to announce a call for papers for a conference with the theme: Spiritual Realities and the Ends of Humanity: Engaging Indian Philosophy with Contemporary Philosophy of Religion. The conference will be held at IIT in Mumbai, India, on January 11-13, 2027.

We are now accepting submissions for papers to be presented at the conference, alongside a funding competition for travel bursaries with an earlier deadline, as detailed below.

Conference Theme

The Global Philosophy of Religion Project 2 is dedicated to transforming the philosophy of religion into a truly global and diverse field of inquiry. We aim to expand the field beyond its usual boundaries by including traditions that are frequently overlooked in contemporary philosophy debates in Anglophone academia, and by addressing contemporary challenges that explore profound questions about the ends of humanity, the shape of a purposeful and meaningful life, what it is to live well, and the role (if any) fundamental spiritual realities like God play in answering such questions.

Our final conference will take place in Mumbai. We believe that India is a critical place for global philosophy of religion and the philosophy of meaning in life. With a longstanding history of multifaith practices, where the co-existence of perspectives includes that of tradition and modernity, India has a unique approach to engaging religious principles, metaphysics, epistemology, transformative technologies of the self, ethics and social values in light of addressing the question of meaning in life.

We welcome papers that address questions concerning the nature and role of spiritual reality, the meaning and purpose in/of human life, and issues of how to live. We are especially open to papers focusing on philosophico-religious traditions that are particularly relevant to the region, that is, traditional South Asian religions such as Hinduism – including but not restricted to Sāṅkhya, Nyāya-Vaiśeṣika, Vedānta, Mīmāṃsā, Shaivism and Vaishnavism –, Buddhism, Jainism, Cārvāka, as well as Islam and Christianity in India and Sikhism, and which bring them in dialogue with global traditions.

Application process

To apply to present at the conference, please submit both an abstract up to 1,000 words and a briefer abstract of up to 150 words by September 15th through the following link:
